Acquisition and Learning

Language:- The expression of meaningful words is called language. We use language to express our thoughts. Language is a systematic arrangement.

According to Sweet, "Expression of thoughts in phonetic words is language."

According to Bendriya, "Language is a type of symbol. Language is a combination of various signs and symbols by which a person expresses himself.

Acquisition of language

Assimilation of language while making adjustment with the environment is called acquisition. A child acquires language through observation. He observes how others communicate and imitates their style of talking. Example- a child learns his mother tongue by acquisition.

Learning of Language

When a child modifies his behavior to learn a language, then it's called "learning of a language". A child learns a language with the help of others.

Example- A child learns a second language.

Characteristics of Learning:-

1. Learning is an active process.
2. Learning is a combination of favorable experiences.
3. Learning is continues throughout life.
4. Learning is universal.
5. Learning is development.
6. Learning is a wise decision
7. Learning is a change in behavior
8. Learning is a target based activity
9. Learning is also possible by insight, re-enforcement, efforts etc.

Difference between Acquisition and Learning

Acquisition	Learning
1. Acquisition takes place in enriched language environment.	1. Learning is based on the learner's attention rather than his environment.
2. Language acquisition is a spontaneous and natural process.	2. Learning requires efforts.
3. In acquisition, use of various forms of the language is important.	3. In learning Grammar, course content and teaching of a language is important.
4. In acquisition, easy linguistic rules are made based on the linguistic factors in the environment.	4. In learning, defined rules of grammar must be learnt.
5. In acquisition, socio cultural qualities are easily assimilated.	5. In learning, different items of grammar are assimilated.
6. In acquisition, various concepts are created in mother tongue.	6. In learning, concepts can be created in both mother tongue & second language.

OBJECTIVES OF LANGUAGE LEARNING

Some of the objectives for classes' I-V would include the following: [Primary stage is from class I to V. It is further divided into 2 stages (Stage 1 covers classes 1 and 2 and Stage 2 covers classes 3 to 5)]

Expected Learning/Objectives at Stage- I (Classes I and II)

- To familiarize learners with the language primarily through spoken input in meaningful situations (teacher talk, listening to recorded material, etc.)
- To help them comprehend spoken and written input provided by the teacher (through mother tongue, signs, visuals, pictures, sketches, gestures, single word questions and answers).
- To help learners build a working proficiency in the language, with the focus on listening with understanding and speaking (words, phrases, small sentences).
- To enable learners to recite and sing poems, songs and rhymes and enact small plays or skits.
- To help them become visually familiar with texts and word(s), their meaning, and understand the letter(s) and sounds of the language.
- To help them associate meaning with written and printed language.
- To use drawing and painting as introduction to writing and relate these activities to oral communication.

Expected Learning/Objectives at Stage - II (Classes III, IV, and V)

- To build on learners' readiness for reading and writing.
- To provide print-rich environment to develop oral and written skills.
- To help learners understand the printed texts in terms of headings, paragraphs and horizontal lines.
- To enrich learners' vocabulary mainly through telling, retelling and reading aloud of stories/folktales in English.
- To use appropriate spoken and written language in meaningful contexts/situations.
- To give learners an opportunity to listen to sounds and appreciate the rhythm and music of rhymes.
- To enable learners to relate words (poems and stories) with appropriate actions and thereby provide understanding of the language.
- To familiarize learners with the basic process of writing.

Alternative Conception of Language Learning

Language learning can be divided into two concepts.

1. Behaviorist approach: - Under this approach, a language is learnt by practicing again and again.
Example- Thorndike, Skinner, Pavlov etc fall in this category.
2. Cognitivist approach: - This approach focuses on assimilation of language by mental approach.
Under this approach, a language is learnt with the help of mind. Example – Psychologist Piaget, Vygotsky and Noam Chomsky etc advocated this approach.

Learning of Language According to Psychologists

According to Skinner and I.P Pavlov

Skinner and I.P Pavlov are considered as behaviorists. According to them a language is learnt through practice, imitation and repetition. According to them, if a child practices, repeats and imitates the language again and again then he can quickly learn the language. A child can learn by imitating others. Learning a language by repeating and imitating a teacher's spoken words is called imitation approach.

According to Noam Chomsky

Skinner wrote in detail about language in his book 'Verbal Behavior'. In the book, learning a language is dependent on practice, imitation etc. Noam Chomsky reviewed this book in '1959' and shook the foundation of review of behaviorism according to the review of Skinner Verbal Behavior.

Chomsky advocated that the capability to learn a language is present by birth and without it learning is impossible. Chomsky contributed innate proposition in development of a language. According to Chomsky, the pace at which children without education acquire words and grammar cannot be interpreted on the mere theories of learning. Children can even make those sentences which they've never heard before. All the children have a special period for language development. According to Chomsky language development is same as physical maturity and requires proper care. A child is born with universal grammar. A child can understand the grammar of every language he listens to.

According to Piaget

Behaviorists considered mind as a 'blank slate', whereas cognitivist Chomsky advocated that language is already present in human mind. According to Piaget, language development takes place on successful interaction between language and its cognitive system with the environment. Piaget rejected the hypothesis that claimed language capability is present by birth. According to Piaget's Constructivist approach, all cognitive system is developed by sensory motor mechanism by which a child develops many schemata based on Assimilation and Accommodation. According to him, a child learns a language by Egocentrism which means being self centered. So a child learns a language by self centeredness.

According to Vygotsky

In Vygotsky's language development, society & culture played an important role. According to him, a child's language is the result of his interaction with the society. According to Vygotsky during language development, a child indulges in:-

- 1. Inner Speech
- 2. Social language

A child indulges in self talk as well interacts with the society. In his experiments, Vygotsky found that small children not only acquire composed text present in the society but also learn difficult prewriting techniques. A child gradually keeps learning complex words to form his vocabulary to interact with the outside world.

Stephen Krashen's Theory of Second Language Acquisition

One more theory on language acquisition is given by Stephens Krashen , according to Stephen the language acquisition does not require extensive use of conscious grammatical rules, and does not require tedious drill. Acquisition requires meaningful interaction in the target language - natural communication - in which speakers are concerned not with the form of their utterances but with the messages they are conveying and understanding.

Here is the description of Krashen's Theory of Second Language Acquisition

The Krashen's theory of second language acquisition consists of five main hypotheses:

1. Acquisition-Learning hypothesis;
2. Monitor hypothesis;
3. Natural Order hypothesis;
4. Input hypothesis;
5. Affective Filter hypothesis.

1. Acquisition-Learning hypothesis:-

According to Krashen there are two independent systems of second language performance: First one is 'the acquired system' and the second one is 'the learned system'. The 'acquired system' or 'acquisition' is the product of a subconscious process very similar to the process children undergo when they acquire their first language. It requires meaningful interaction in the target language - natural communication - in which speakers are concentrated not in the form of their utterances, but in the communicative act.

2. Monitor hypothesis:-

The Monitor hypothesis explains the relationship between acquisition and learning and defines the influence of the latter on the former. The monitoring function is the practical result of the learned grammar.

3. Natural Order hypothesis:-

The Natural Order hypothesis is based on research findings that suggested the acquisition of grammatical structures follows a 'natural order' which is predictable. For a given language, some grammatical structures tend to be acquired early while others late.

4. Input hypothesis:-

The Input hypothesis in Krashen's attempt is to explain how the learner acquires a second language – how second language acquisition takes place. Here we need to be very clear that the Input hypothesis is only concerned with 'acquisition', not 'learning'. According to this hypothesis, the learner improves and progresses along the 'natural order' when he/she receives second language 'input' that is one step beyond his/her current stage of linguistic competence.

5. Affective Filter hypothesis:-

The Affective Filter hypothesis embodies Krashen's view that a number of 'affective variables' play a facilitative, but non-causal, role in second language acquisition. The variables included are : motivation, self-confidence and anxiety.

Nature of Language:-

1. Language is an indicative resource of expression.
2. Language is related to thoughts.
3. Language is an acquired property, not an ancestral property.
4. Language is related to society and culture.
5. Language is learnt through imitation.
6. Language is a dynamic and changeable process.
7. Language follows the rule of synthesis to analysis.
8. Language is a behavioral subject.
9. Language cultivates various events of life.
10. Language is used in various references of life.
11. A language flourishes by the infusion of other languages.
12. The primary form of a language is based on signals because a child firstly learns signs.

Parts of Language

Language can be divided into following parts:-

1. Phoneme – It is the smallest unit of language. It doesn't have any meaning of its own but when attached with a word it modifies it. In other words, a phoneme is a unit of sound in speech. A phoneme doesn't have any inherent meaning by itself, but when you put phonemes together, they can make words.
Examples- a, b, c, d etc.
2. Phonology- It is defined as the study of sound patterns and their meanings, both within and across languages.
3. Morpheme – It's a small unit of a word. After acquiring the knowledge of phoneme, a child starts learning words. Since mental development isn't complete, so a child speaks smaller words known as morpheme. In other words, it is the smallest unit of a word that provides a specific meaning to a string of letters.
Examples – Car, Jar, Ram, Geeta, Dog, Cat etc.
4. Semantic – When all the words in a sentence have a meaning, then it's known as a semantic sentence. In this, language and the meaning of the words is stressed. In other words, the study of the meaning in a language conveyed by words, phrases and sentences is called semantic.
Example – A teacher drinks tea. In this sentence, every word has a meaning, but we can't say "Teacher eats tea". because tea can't be eaten. We can only drink it.
5. Syntactically – It refers to the structure of the sentence. It means subject, object and verb should be at the correct place. Syntactically, every word is written in the order. In other words, in linguistics syntactically means the study of the rules that govern the ways in which words combine to form phrases, clauses, and sentences.
Example – Madam is drinking tea. In this sentence, all the words are in the order. But if we write, "Madam tea drinking", then the order of the sentence becomes incorrect.
6. Ellipsis: An ellipsis (plural: ellipses) is a punctuation mark consisting of three dots. Use an ellipsis when omitting a word, phrase, line, paragraph, or more from a quoted passage. Ellipses save space or remove material that is less relevant.

Different forms of Language

1. Mother Tongue – It's that language of the region where all the people use it to speak, write and exchange their thoughts. It's mostly learnt by acquisition.
2. Root Language – Every language is derived from some other language. All the languages are a part of some language family. Root language is a language from which another language is derived. Example – Many languages have been derived from Sanskrit.
3. Dialect – When all the people of a specified region speak the same language, then it's known as a dialect.
Example – Haryanvi, Gujarati, Rajasthani etc.
4. Foreign language – Apart from a country's mother tongue, all other languages are known as foreign languages. Example – Generally, Hindi is spoken in India, so English, German, French etc are foreign languages.

Bi – Lingual and Polyglotism

A child who can speak two languages is called bilingual. A polyglot can speak five to ten languages. Example – Hindi is prevalent in India, so if a child learns English, then English becomes his second language. After learning both Hindi and English, if a child also learns French, German etc then he's known as a polyglot. Many Indians use more than one language in their day-to-day life. So polyglotism is a way of life here. Polyglotism increases cognitive and pedagogical efficiency.

Aim of mother tongue teaching

At Primary level (I – V)

1. To teach reading to students in such a manner that they can pronounce correctly words.
2. To make student efficient in oral expression to express their mental feelings correctly.
3. To develop efficiency in understanding different subjects.
4. To express mental thoughts verbally as well as in written form.
5. To teach etiquettes to children.

At Secondary Level (VI – VIII)

1. To encourage the nature of self study in students.
2. To develop the feeling of beauty in students.
3. To provide the knowledge of Grammar to understand the purity of language.
4. To achieve the fixed goals of primary level at secondary level.

At Higher secondary level (IX – XII)

1. To develop the habit of studying writings of high-profile writers and to encourage self writing.
2. To develop the quality of interpreting beauty.
3. To understand the qualities and defects in a language.
4. To develop the nature of self study in students.
5. To develop high quality of self motivation & creativity.
6. To encourage participation in debates, story-telling and essay competitions.

Aims of teaching Hindi as a Mother Tongue

Thoughts originate from language. Firstly, a child expresses his thoughts in his mother tongue and later on links the thoughts with the second language. The aim of teaching language to a child is to develop the skills of listening, speaking, reading and writing. The aims of teaching Hindi as a mother tongue are as follows. (i.e. Pitch).

1. Receptive Aim – It means to receive something. It means to assimilate by listening or reading the content. We need to make the children capable of listening and reading to fulfill receptive aim.
Example – Listening and reading are both receptive skills.
2. Productive Aim – Production means to present one's ideas and thoughts verbally or in writing in front of others. Expression of thoughts is very important in a person's life; otherwise he won't be able to exchange his thoughts. Productive skills should be developed in children so that they can express themselves.
Example – Both writing and speaking are productive skills.
3. Critical Aim – The meaning of critical aim is to develop the skill of criticism. After mental development, children start reviewing all the content, poems etc after reading. They learn to differentiate under critical aim. It's important to create critical thinking so that a child can know about different areas of an object.
4. Constructive Aim – It's also known as creative aim. Constructive aim means to create original composition. It's the duty of the teacher to develop the writing skills in children so that they can express their thoughts in written words. Children should be asked to write about different areas like debates, poems, stories, letters etc to develop their creativity.
5. Attitudinal Aim – It means to develop appropriate point of view, habits and attitude in children. This aim lays stress on promoting sensitivity, love for the country and humanity in the children.

Teaching of poetry

Vishwanath writes- "Poetry is a rhythmic sentence."

Anandvardhan writes- "The soul of poetry is sound."

According to Shyam Sundar Dass - "Poem is an artistic language that's full of feelings."

After the interpretation of the findings of all the scholars, we can say that:-

1. Poetry is delightful.
2. In poetry rhythm, beat and music is important.
3. Poetry has a co-ordination with life.
4. Poetry has a feeling of beauty.

Aims of poetry Teaching

1. To make the students capable of reading poetry with correct emotions, pace and rise and fall.
2. To make students capable of understanding the poem after reading it themselves.
3. To boost the imagination power of students.
4. To make students understand the poem after someone else recites it.
5. To develop the liking for poems and literature in children.
6. To introduce children to human-life through poems.

– (7) –

Saroja Publications

7. To impart the knowledge of a country's customs, traditions etc through poems.
8. To develop creativity in students so that they can create their own poems.
9. To make the students capable of critically reviewing poems.
10. To introduce various styles of poetry to the students.

Methods of Teaching Poetry

1. Dramatization Method- Many children poems and songs are based on drama. Children are naturally inclined towards drama. So such children poems should be selected which are related to the subject and can be read and operated through drama. This method can be used individually as well as in groups.
2. Method of Singing- In this method, firstly a teacher himself reads the poem with appropriate rhythm, beat and sounds. The teacher asks the students to imitate his spoken words. Then both the students and the teacher sing the poem.
3. Word- Meaning Methods- Under this method, a teacher explains the meaning of words at the time of teaching. While reading each sentence of the poem, the teacher explains the meaning of every difficult word and explains each line in a simple language.
4. Method of Explanation- In this method, the teacher explains in detail the important points while loudly reading the poem. The teacher explains the poem and asks questions from the students and based on their answers clarifies the meaning of the poem. This method is extremely beneficial for poetry teaching at the secondary and higher levels.
5. Critical Analysis Method- This method is the comprehensive and changed form of the explanation method. Under this method, criticism of the poem takes place. Under this method, a poem is critically interpreted on the basis of art and emotion. The student learns the emotion, rhythm, and decoration (rhetoric) qualities of the poem. This method is used in higher classes.
6. Detailed Discussion Method- This method is the developed form of explanation method. Detail means discussion at length. In this method, a teacher tries to explain each emotion and word in depth. A teacher tries to philosophically explain and interpret various factors of a poem like emotion, rhythm, ornaments etc. This method is beneficial only for the higher classes.
7. Comparative Method- In this method, a teacher compares the poem with other poems. Taught poem can be compared to any similar poem by any method.
8. Part of Factor Method- In this method, a teacher asks his students to orally read the poem & then divides the poem in sequenced parts or pieces. Questions are formed from each word and sentence to study every part in detail.

Teaching of Prose

The prose has kept alive the cumulative knowledge of literature. Today the history, culture and civilization of human species is protected by prose. By using prose, the thoughts are exchanged among the human species.

Aims of Teaching Prose

1. To impart students the right pace, rise & fall and rhythm.
2. To boost the nature of self study in students.
3. To impart the knowledge of scripts, vocabulary, idioms, phrases etc to students.
4. To make the students capable of acquiring the meaning of emotions.
5. To boost the ability of silent reading, observation, comprehension and imagination in students.
6. To build the interest of students in poetry.
7. To impart the knowledge of society, religion, country, religious beliefs, customs and various parts of a human life to students.
8. To develop the power of criticism and creativity in students.

Methods of Teaching Prose

1. Meaning Explanation Method- In this method, a teacher explains the meaning of the words in a sequence. This method is considered to be unscientific because students remain passive.
2. Explanation Method- In this method, after verbal reading the teacher explains the meaning of difficult words and explains the passage in a simple language.
3. Question- Answer Method- In this method, a teacher asks questions from the students. In this method, words and emotions are explained with the help of questions and answers. The teacher while checking the previous knowledge imparts new knowledge to the students.
4. Elective Method- At secondary level, the mixture of various methods can be used to effectively explain the prose. Using more than one method for teaching prose is called elective method.
5. Critical evaluation method- This method is used for higher classes. In this method, the concept is taught and its various aspects are explained critically by the teacher. Then the students are asked to evaluate the same prose in a critical manner. This method should be used only when the students are fully aware of all the aspects and skills of the prose and the language.

Steps Involved in Prose Teaching

Today every subject is taught according to the psychological system. Psychologist Herbert also gave a psychological system for teaching prose. Herbert advocated five formal steps in teaching prose:-

1. Preparation- The creation of environment by the teacher on entering the class and before teaching is called preparation. The teacher uses recall questions, lecture questions and obedient question for preparation.
2. Presentation- In this, a teacher sequentially links the previous knowledge of students to new facts and explains related concepts in simple glossary.
3. Comparison- In this, a teacher teaches by trying to make an adjustment between the previous and newly acquired knowledge by comparison. It requires great effort from the teacher.
4. Generalization- The teacher generalizes the taught content by various means. The teacher uses examples and rules for generalization.

Saroja Publications

5. Application- In this method, a teacher tries to make his students apply the learned knowledge in various fields.

Teaching of Story

Munshi Premchand writes- "Story is a creation in which the writer tries to write about one part or one emotion of life.

Charles writes- "Story is a small creation of a passage in which real incidents of life are presented in artistic form.

Aims of Story Teaching

1. To enable the students to tell stories and express their thoughts verbally.
2. To develop the skills of listening and understanding in students.
3. To develop the interest of literature in students.
4. To develop the skills of imagination and memory in students.
5. To make students aware of social values, religious practices, old literature and various aspects of human life.
6. To develop interest and curiosity in students for the taught subject.
7. To encourage the students to write stories on their own.

Teaching of Play/Drama

Acharya Bharat Muni writes- "Drama is an experiment in which famous historical or imaginative event is staged to the certain audience.

Aim of Teaching Drama

1. To introduce the students to the field of drama.
2. To impart the knowledge of words, idioms and phrases to students.
3. To develop the vocabulary, observation, imagination, perception etc of students.
4. To introduce the students to various aspects of human life.
5. To teach students correct pronunciation, pace and sound.
6. To develop the quality of critical examination of drama in students.

Methods of Teaching Drama

1. Methods of Telling the Meaning- In this, a teacher himself does the loud reading of drama and presents it to the students. The teacher himself explains the meaning of words. The teacher only explains the plot of the drama and doesn't focus on other areas of the drama.
2. Method of Model Reading- In this method, a teacher presents the dialogues of all the characters with appropriate emotions, body operation and pronunciation.
3. Method of Stage Acting- In this method, children present the drama on stage. The teacher monitors them.
4. Method of Acting in the Class- It is the modified form of stage acting. In this method, students act in the class without any stage. It's a psychological and meaningful system. In this method, the students remain active and develop their language skills.
